HE "TREATY PORTS OF CHINA & JAPAN," AND "NUTES AND DERIES ON CHINA AND JAPAN." EXTRACTS FROM REVIEWS.

From the "Strasts Times," July 27, 1868.) Some time ago we had occasion to remark spon the progress that Literature as represented by the Proce had made and was making in the East, and our attention has again been called to the subject by the receipt of a Hongkong publication which deserves some notice and which we have pleasure in introducing to the knowledge of our readers. We allude to Note and Queries on (hina and Japan, published monthly by Mr Saint, the proprietor of the China Mail newspaper. This publication is well, printed on good paper, and in size and shape is very like its well-known name sake or prototype at home, and is equally a mine containing very curious and useful information regarding the language, literature, history, manners and customs of the Chinese and in a less degree of the Japanese It says a good deal for the extent and stability of the footing of Europeans in China, that such a publication as this should be established and conducted with apparently successful vigour.

The publication is altogether a very ineresting one, and wishing it every success we commend it to the attention and support our readers.

(From the "Friend of India," June 4, 1868.) We acknowledge with thanks the receipt f the numbers for the current year of Notes and Queries," a most deserving Anglo-Chinese monthly, edited by Mr N B. Dennya, whose "Treaty Ports of China and Japan" are so well known. From the uames attached to the "Notes" we can see that the contributors include some of the best Chinese scholars in the East. Its interest is not confined to China, and it will be of valuable assistance to all scholars, who have directed their attention towards the subject of Buddhism and its literature, and generally to all who are interested in onental antiquities. It deserves to be better known in India.

(From the "Losidon Examiner." May 16, 1868.)

This really useful volume ["Treaty Ports China and Japan,"] is intended as a guide for travellers and residents in China and Japan, and as a book of reference for mercantile men generally. It contains an account, historical and political, of all the open ports of these countries, together with Peking, Yedo, Hongkong, and Macao. has been carefully compiled and edited by Mr N. B. Dennys: and the elaborate maps and plans, with which the work abounds, considerably enhance its value. * * We have thus given in outline some of the more prominent portions of the chapter devoted to Canton, as a specimen of t whole volume. Other chapters treating of the remainder of the treaty ports, we can only enumerate. The pages describing Peking, the capital, are so interesting, and contain so much that is new to European readers respecting its history, public builtheir crews at the Harbour blaster's Office, dings, and general characteristics, that we perial City and neighbourhood, gives us an occurate notion of the relative position of ets divisions, streets, and places.

INAUGURATION OF THE NORTH

GERMAN BUND FLAG.

CEREMONY which to Germans remain historically memorable took place at Noon to day, when the eagle-emblazoned flag of Prussia was hauled down to be replaced by the Black, White, and Red of United Germany. As our readers are aware, advertisements inviting the attendance of those interested at the Prussian Consulate were inserted in the papers, though no specific invitations were sent to any one. At half-past eleven this of other nationalities -- some 120 persons in all-were present to show their interest in the proceedings. The Hosts on the occasion, Mesars Eimbeke and Menke, the celebration took place, were supported by Canton; Mona du Cheme, French Consul ; Senor Colarte, Spanish Consul ; Mr Determan, Acting Dutch Consul; Captain Struben of the Prussian vessel Meduco, and other officers of the ship, and all the leading Germans in the Colony. A few minutes before noon Mr Eimboke proceeded to the lower part of the building where the celebration was held the new flag, furled, being placed in front of him. Silence having been obtained My Eimbeke spoke to the following effect:

Fellow countrymen !.. We have assembled here to-day to celabrate a highly important event in the history of our country—that of changing the flag of the Kingdom of Prussis for that of the " North Garman Bund." This event is significant, not as a mere change of colors only but as representing the step from strength scattered and disjointed to that of strength united and firm. We have chosen to-day as the date for consummating this cliange in Hongkong because we now have the advantage of the presence of the Medusa corvette, by whose gallant commander the the change of flag will be effected.

When Mr Eimboke ceased speaking salute from the Medusa and other vessels in harbour informed his hearers that the Prussian flag had ceased to wave in Hongkong waters. The native intantry band (lent for the occasion) struck-up the anthem of God save the Queen which formerly taken by us from Hanover, has now been readopted by United Germany as its national air, and the guesta streamed out to the Praya to catch a last glimpse of the flag which will hanceforth be but a memory of the past. In few minutes they returned to the building (formerly Messra Bowra & Co.'s) on the roomy upper floor of which well decorated with nutural and other flege festoons de a capital lunch had been laid out. When all were scated Mr Menke, ex-Consul for Prussia, rose and with and in a most feeling and stirring manner spoke as follows :-

MY DEAR FELLOW COUNTRYMEN, YOU were asked by the North German Consul to respond to sentiment in favor of the North German, Flag and its noble patron a and there was certainly not one in our midst who did not cordially join in an enthusiastic response to it. But do not let us forget on this occasion to cast a grateful look at the past. Let us at this glorious moment remember those to whom we owe the accomplishment of our dearest wishes- "the mification of our fatherland." Let us at this moment remember the founders of our 'bund," our beloved Prussian Landesvater and his brave sons, who cheerfully sacrificing their all, their names and their lives, attained the goal to which we had so long looked forward: let us cast a thankful look upon glorious Prussia which has laid down upon the altar of the fatherland the victorious flag which has honourably waved in peace and war since the days of Frederick Gentlemen. I ask you to join me in a hearty toast to the founders of the North German Bund, " to His Majesty the King, and to his brave children !" The toast was drunk with immens enthusiasm and after a few minutes pause Commander Struben of the Me-dusa replied as under For the kind sentiments just now so well expressed, which must have emanated from the bottom of the heart. I beg in the name of His Majesty by whom I am deputed to the Far East for the protection of resident Germans and their political and commercial interests my very sincere

May the N. G. flag be a blessing and bring happiness to the Germans here and in otler parts of the Far East. May the fing not only protect art and science in the country, but be instrumental in the deveconnent of trade. May it be the means of introducing the productions of industry into all parts of the world in order that the welfare of the country be thereby increased May every one of us in his particular calling and according to his ability do his best to achieve this and let us in this sense devote three hearty cheers to "Our Good Fatherland."

Baron von Carlowitz then rose and proposed, in complimentary terms, the health of Mr Menke. He alluded to the fact of his long tenure of the office of Prussian Consul, and to his having made many friends in that capacity. He had merited the unqualified esteem of his countrymen and he would propose the health of Mr Menke who might deservedly be termed the "German favourite." Mr Monke then returned thanks for the cordial manner in which his health had been drank, and proposed that of Mr Eimbeke, the new Consul, concluding with the words "it is my fervent wish that God may give him strength to discharge the duties which will fall to his lot to execute, and reflect, as I fully believe he will, honor upon the selection which has been made." Mr. Menke's speech was much applauded. Mr Eimboke in responding addressed the guests in French. It was, he said, the language of diplomacy and custom, and being understood by all, they would pardon his using it especially when it was for the toast he had to propose. This was the health of "Foreign Consuls Present" and would, he was sure, be drank with much pleasure. Mona H. du Chesne replied : He had, he said, been asked to speak for the other gentlemen included in the toash morning, accordingly, a goodly concourse and both on his own and their behalf he of Germans, with not a small sprinking returned hearty thanks for the compliment paid them. THE TRADE OF CHINKIANG. nowhere in the neighbourhood of shanghar. can the effects of rebel occupation be better studied than at Chinkiang. Since a period three conturies before the Christian erathis city had been a place of very considerable importance. It was the capital during the sarly years of the Emperor Mu. of the Tsin dynasty. Marco Polo describes the peopl as being wealthy, gaining their living by trade and manufactures. The latter chroniclers speak of it as one of the most important cities in the emptre: its street payed with marble and so crowded one can scarcely squeeze through them." It has always stood high in routive estime tion both as a key to the entrance of the Yangtase, and more recently as an outlying defence to Nanking. Re situation at the Great River created its importance, for the understand the report, threatened whole of the northern and north-castern trade naturally passed through its markets point as to the duty of the Attorney Gene | while ascending or descending the causi Hence from every corner of the empire merchants congregated there and we are informed that in 1851 the officially reported population (probably out third or engineth of the real amount) was lialf a million While Chinkiang owed its wealth and im portance to its position these on the other naud direquently brought it into trouble The occupation by the English in 1842 was only one of a series of convulsions which from the founding of the city had attended. its growth and development. At least twice it had been utterly destroyed by insurgents. but on each occasion at arose from its sahes more vigorous than before. It suffered comparatively little at the hands of the English and a few months after the treaty was sigued Chinkiang resumed its importance as a central mart. But the destruc ion wrought by the Taiping rebels was of a much deeper and more lasting character. They held the city for five years, during which time they not only stopped the trade, but they depopulated the country round They were not content to tear down and burn the bouses and public buildings, but they also endeavoured to stifle whatever verms of trade might remain hidden of They made the city inaccessible by land and by the creeks, and they gave it a bad name It is not therefore to be wondered at that in to the present, after an interval of some welve years, Chinkiang has not recovered mything like its aucient importance. Bu the improvement that has taken place is proof of the extraordinary resiliency the Chinese nature, Mr Kleinwachter writing in 1866, described the neighbouring dustry as lying uncultivated in cons nence of the lack of labourers. Vast lb had then remained for ten years "undisturbed by the some cases because the owners had exterminated, and in others because the utlay required to remove the weeds and ubbish that had collected could not b net by the actual holders of the title deed welve months however worked a remarkable change, so that at the beginning of rounding country remained unproductive and Olinkiang itself had during 1867 taken nijust double the amount of imports taken luring 1866, while the exports showed an ncrease of 45 per cent. Judging by the parterly reports for 1868, traile continue o increase steadily and not by aby mexica slowly during the past year. Mr. Allen, in ig interesting, report, recently, published sums up the moult of the whole year, an arrives at the conclusion that in imports here was an increuse of no less than 450 her cent. over 1867. This excludes oping in which there was a falling off of nearly duarter of a million of tauls, or 18 per cent as despatch to the Government of this Colo- on 1807. In experts there was an increase hy stating that the French Government of about 14 per ceut, the smallness of which have granted for a period of forty years, to seems strange when we consider the vast improvement in the gondition of the surker the exclusive right of telegraphic rounding country. In Chinking itself the

he Secretary of State, and the Consul has the export of grain, which is very notice, It is certain that Chinking is rapidly rising, and although its proximity to Shanghai must for many years necessarily dwarf it and retain it in the position of a dependant there are many reasons why it may eventually attain greatness. Should a partition of the empire take place, which not at all unlikely. Chinking might again ttain the dignity of an imperial capital t presents many advantages over Manking. and we may rest assured hat should a its seat will be decided by one European power or more. Nanking would ase gain little from her prestige as being origer a capital. Politically Chinklang hist always be most important But as year by year the northern trade will more Shanghai instead of by caual boats Chinking, we are not very sanguine, ance of the latter city.

The procedure which Sir Barnes Peacock would have applied to it has never en in the worst days of English tyrangy enforced against written criticisn upon a judicial proceeding after that proceeding was concluded. The precedent which he quoted in Mr. Tayler's belonged to a time when the reigning dynasty was practically a family of foreign ers imported by shear necessity among us ignorant of the customs of the country and a stranger to the affections of the peo A great reballion had been recently put down, but lurked in half the shires and half the country-houses of England, and if was necessary for the public safety to wink at the exercise of unusual powers on the par of the conneitlors and justiciaries of th Crown. But not even in those days would Mr W. Tayler or Major Fenwick bave beer denied a trial by jury ; and for a full conlury back Euglish Judges lave been forced to accept the same position as Enghab Ministers of State and seek redress for what they may tateem defactatory writings at the hands of twelve jurors. What then shall we say to the spectable of an English man arrested without affidavit, brought before a Court, acoused of writing a letter with regard to which the Court had no confidence of the Grand Canal and the legal knowledge, and, so far as we can authorship. If Lord Manafield had only had Sir Barnes Peacock by his side there would have been no mystery about the authorship of Junius. To Major Fenwick we lowe it that this procedure a procedure in which an English subject is delied a jury, and in which an English Judge sits as promoutor, Judge and court of appeal in his own cause-has not become an established precedent in Indian Law. -Mr Taylor's case formed such a precedent; and, had Major Fenwick no fought the case on general formoiples. hi case would have strengthened and firmed the precedent already laid down Had this taken place, the liberty of ever English subject and the freedom of every Eugush newspaper in India would been imperilled. The Executive officers would have endeavoured to avail themselves of the procedure; and every Judg down to the most ignorant Moonsiff, every Magiatrate and police officer, down to the corrupt and venal torturers who wring confessions and hush-muney out of their vic tims by rubbing red pepper into their eyes would have silenced the faintest murmy of public cousure by imprisonment and fine Such a state of things is happily impossible in any country where Englishmen and English journals exist, but it is only im possible because men are found, like Major fenwick, willing to fight the public cause at their own hazard and expense.

It behoves the public to see that suc men do not suffer from their public spirit The harshest feature of the late proceeding is that, whether the accused be guilty or not, the Judge can punish him. tine and imprisonment do their work innocent he can be kept in Court till his expenses amount to ruin. There is plaintiff or prosecutor to come against for the costs; and the successful defendant. n the position of a man who is dismissed by the surgeons after amputation, certifie to be sound in health, but unfortunatel without his right arm. A subscription has been opened to pay Major Fenwick's expenses, and we trust that, he every Englishman and newspaper is rendered safe by his gallantry, all will be ready to express their gratitude in a practical form. One word about Sir Barnes Peacock, and we have done. He had an opportunity for nonorable retreat, and he did not adopt it Instead of that, he woult on with the case until a little legal loop-hole presented ied flight. We would willingly spare the celings of so old a public servant; but, long as the judgment against Mr Taylor remains unrescinded on the rolls of th High Court, so long will the name of Si Barnes Peacock be remembered in connecion with what posterity, n't less than the sent generation, will declare to have seen a grave misuse of power and a great udicial wrong.

Morning Herald, under date April 6, says The question of the affinity of the human race with the lower animal organism, or. not to put too fine a point upon it, the monkey origin of mankind, has been lately revived in Florence, by the delivery of interesting public lecture on the subject, by Dr. Alexar des Herzen at our Royal Museum, So great was the number of apen male and female, who felt a desire to have their genealogical tree established upon a satisfactory busis, that the restricted locality at the lecturer's disposal could scarcely accommodate a tenth part of the claimants. The lecture was afterwards published, and has given rise to a vigorous polemic in the nawspapers. Aristot, and Thomas Aqui nas are enlisted in the service against Dar win, Huxley, and De Filippo, and the theory of the absolute is brought to bear against the principle of natural selection.
